Like geological upheavals in a landscape, they mark our lives as uneven, uncertain and prone to reversal. Are they simply, as some have claimed, animal energies or impulses with no connection to our thoughts? Or are they rather suffused with intelligence and discernment, and thus a source of deep awareness and understanding?

Upheavals of Thought by Martha C. Nussbaum

The title is from Proust—"Love in this way produces real geological upheavals of thought"—the idea being that even love has cognitive-evaluative dimensions. In one of many variant formulations, Nussbaum contends: "emotions are suffused with intelligence and discernment . . .

Upheavals of Thought: The Intelligence of Emotions ...

The book is definitely a sharp turn away from what I would consider the 'spirit' of Stoicism, but uses a similar framework of thought to develop a very different idea with emotional neediness as one of its 'givens' regarding human condition.
